Lazarus failed to mention the rising costs to us all since the reform bill was passed.

How much do you suppose all those calorie counts on restaurant menus have cost? Do you suppose more than a few jobs may have been lost because of that mandate? Do you suppose a single person who has not already learned to push away from the table has paid any attention to those numbers?

I am a very healthy male with no ongoing issues, and I visit the doctor maybe once a year for a checkup, but my premium has nearly doubled since the reform law was passed.

So yes, I have felt an impact already. I can't wait to see what the government tells me I have to buy next.
